

Electric Utility Products

Electric and thermal insulating properties of Ash-Composites plus the addition of reinforcing fibers offers a superior performance in many electrical products. This includes utility poles, cross-arms, insulators and many more. These properties aid producing less expensive underground boxes and many more electrical application products. We are currently working on a utility crossarm and the utility underground boxes. Some prototypes are shown below.

